GERMANY NEAR DEFEAT STILL SHOWS FIGHT

(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Oct. 26.—This has been a week of "notes." The Kaiser's note was answered so that it leaves no doubt unconditional surrender will be the ultimate terms which he must meet.

There seems no occasion to alter the view of my letter of the 12th as to the German situation. Germany is facing defeat but she fights long and hard when she gets into German soil, and the only terms she should have are such as "fool" will offer when she is ready to quit talking and lays down her arms.

Our Wisconsin boys will be awfully disappointed if they don't call on the Kaiser in Berlin and that is not unlikely, for as long as the Junkers can control, they'll fight. It means blue ruin for them, anyway. If they surrender they must disappear from the stage. They are pretty thick headed but give them credit for knowing that much.

Some of the state papers have, I have noticed, commented upon absence of campaign activity and have laid it to the liberty icon and the influenza epidemic. Those have been active influences and as nearly as I can discover they were particularly happy and timely for all the campaign committees of all parties. The word has been passed from mouth to mouth this week. I am told, after the loan was out of the way and after the "boys" were friendly to Philip, that as I was told in a stage whisper of deep and serious confidence—"There ain't no money!"

So far as I can learn, Gov. Philipp and the Democratic candidate, Henry Heinen, are doing about all the campaigning that is in motion and that is largely personal effort. The reports are that Wilcox men are showing no enthusiasm for Philipp, and the fear is that they are after his scalp. The governor has been going lame ever since his Prairie du Chien speech at the opening of the primary campaign. That is bad advertising for a great "war governor" and it went everywhere, even among newspapers that were friendly to Philipp. It was a poor start, especially with Wilcox giving it emphasis and making awkward references to the governor's choice of Mrs. Victor Berger for the state board of education. The two things "sailed in." The governor's close shave in the primary demonstrated that.

There's no question as to Henry Moehlenpau's enthusiasm for the vigorous prosecution of the war or his militant patriotism. He was a Wilson man in 1912 and has been his staunch supporter ever since. In spite of the fact that the Democrats have no organization and might have few votes in Wisconsin, Republicans who will vote for him say Moehlenpau will be elected. They are two things to give color to such a possibility. Some of these men were active and efficient workers for Wilcox, and the results of the primary were proof that they are dangerous. So it may be lucky that the well springs of political finance have evidently gone "dry" and that the campaign is so quiet. The seed sown in the primary may be sprouting.

The Amsterdam Handelsblad in an article on the "heroic age" of this nation says: "Impurified in the annals of the world is what the American nation has done in a few months' time." The Americans have decided for war with an enthusiasm such as inspired the crusaders. Continuing, the editor pays the following profound compliment to the incredible freedom we have sent to battle:

"It is a new people which has brought about these miracles. Not an Anglo-Saxon but a universal race, inspired by American sentiment, comes to be the great world power which acts decisively in this war. Before me lies spread out a list of the Americans fallen. How numerous the names which blend to form that new American light of dazzling whiteness! Poles, Austrians, Germans, Italians, French, Slavoc peoples, Dutch, Spaniards, Negroes, and all the rest of the world, and while wondering at so great a diversity of races, who together constitute a single great nation, one reads what the gifted commander-in-chief, Poch, testifies of them: 'They are men who do not know fear but know obedience, and are led by officers who may be counted upon.'"

Freedom has been justified by its children! Only one thing needs to be added to that splendid and just tribute. The Anglo-Saxon spirit of a thousand years of freedom for the average man is, despite the many races represented, the rich heritage of every man among those fine sons of ours of whom he speaks. Freedom was not born in a day, not without centuries of struggle and sacrifice. The self restrained freeman is proving his superiority over a fighting machine. We are confident he would but it is no less gratifying to have the old world say it for us.

Personal and Impersonal. John Clifford is making a fight for the Second congressional district and ought to beat Voigt, who has voted wrong and talked wrong ever since he has been in congress. Clifford and Huston would make a great team in the two districts up north. They have been in hard luck ever since the war began. It is time for the voters up there to exercise their responsibility and clean out pro-Germanism.

Ed Jones of Portage seems to have a clean cut issue of Americanism in his candidacy for the state senate against George Staudenmayer. He ought to beat the Hun to a fare ye well.

The cleaning of the Germans out of France and Belgium before winter will help the coal situation. American up-to-date outfits of machinery are in Belgium and France awaiting the opportunity to be installed, and the coal and iron mines will be put to work as rapidly as they are recovered.

The latest is that Milwaukee schools have only 1,000 pupils studying German now, as against 30,000 last year. It is said that Leo Stern, supervisor of foreign languages in the Milwaukee public schools, will be dispensed with at the close of the school year. That is letting him off easy.

The senate investigating committee voted to let into the activities of brewers thoroughly. If they do, some of our Wisconsin brewers will be more prominent.

A leading eastern coal journal says of Milwaukee that the charge is made that 32 homes on a leading residential street contain an aggregate of 710 tons of coal, while many poor cottagers who have had their orders in for months, have not received a pound. "Page the fuel administrator."

The Americanization conference which was called for next Tuesday has been postponed because of the influenza ban.

LEGAL ADVISORY BOARD BUSY AT COURT HOUSE
The members of the Legal Advisory board were rushed all day today working on the questionnaires. The court room was filled most of the morning as were the majority of the other rooms throughout the building. It is estimated that over three hundred questionnaires will be completely filled out today. Sunday the board worked all day and completed over two hundred. However a much greater number could have been accommodated. The board sends out a call urging all to come as soon as possible so that the work may be finished early this week.

CHAPTER IX.

Justification.

Colonel Destinn bent over the map spread out before him in an attitude of concentrated attention. It was an unusual-looking map, roughly outlined and almost destitute of the ordinary network of mountains and rivers. At the top a single town had been marked, and from there downward there ran a dark red line, almost undeviating, which cut the upper part of the white linen in two distinct halves. On either side of this line there were towns marked and the beginnings of waterways, but in no instance did these extend beyond an inch on either hand. It was as though the red line had absorbed everything, and that what lay beyond its immediate radius was of no account, a blank white waste of depopulated country. The lower part of the map had been painted yellow, and there the red line faltered and broke off. Colonel Destinn's pencil hovered over the jagged end, and his brows were knitted into an expression of thwarted impatience. On the other side of the table an elderly man wearing the uniform of a French army doctor sat and stroked his neatly-trimmed beard with a red-tipped cane. From time to time he glanced doubtfully at his companion, and at last, receiving no attention, gave vent to an apologetic cough.

"I am afraid I have come at an inopportune moment," he said. "You are busy. The matter is of really no importance."

Destinn started and looked up.

"Pardon me. I was absorbed in a difficult calculation. You are mistaken. The matter is of importance. Life is no doubt cheap out here, but economy has to be practiced even in cheap things. Besides, order has been established in Sidi-bel-Abbes, and any act of wanton aggression must be punished with a hard hand. You say the bullet has been extracted?"

"Yes."

"Did it suggest anything to you?"

The doctor shrugged his shoulders. His small brown eyes had shifted from the colonel's face to the floor.

"It forced me to the conclusion that the assassin was in possession of an army revolver—stolen, without doubt."

"Without doubt," Colonel Destinn agreed. "The man is doing well?"

"As well as can be expected. There was considerable loss of blood following on the extraction. 'Also fever'."

"Next week I am taking a fresh batch with me down south to the present terminus. Will our English friend be in a fit state to bear us company?"

"Undoubtedly—if he is not sent back to his regiment for the present. Otherwise—" His expression was significant.

At that moment Captain Arnaud entered and he got up stiffly. Destinn glanced over his shoulder.

"Ah, good morning! Well, I shall not detain you any longer, doctor. In the course of the day I may have a look at the sufferer, and I shall then give further orders. The culprit you can leave to me. Sit down, won't you, Arnaud?"

The young officer remained standing.

He returned the doctor's greeting mechanically and his features were blank.

As the door closed Colonel Destinn threw down his pencil and their eyes met.

"Sit down."

This time Arnaud obeyed. The elder man bent forward with his chin resting on his hand.

"In the ordinary course of events I should have had you arrested last night," he said. "If I did not do so it was because there was something unusual in the case that interested me."

"Yes."

"Did it suggest anything to you?"

The doctor shrugged his shoulders. His small brown eyes had shifted from the colonel's face to the floor.

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire.

There is a harassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source. The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle today at any drugstore, and you will see results from the right treatment. Write for expert medical advice, which you can get without cost, by addressing Medical Director, 21 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.
